IAMSE Annual Conference Program

The annual conference of the International Association of Medical Science Educators (IAMSE) offers many opportunities for faculty development and networking, and brings medical sciences and medical education across the continuum together. This year's main topic is "Integrating Generations: Are We Ready for the Next 25 Years of Health Professions Education?" Confirmed Plenary speakers include Will Bynum from Duke University, USA, Teresa Chan from Toronto Metropolitan University, Canada, Thirusha Naidu from the University of KwaZulu-Natal, South Africa, and Yvonne Steinert from McGill University, Canada. The conference offers workshops, focus sessions, oral and poster presentations, and ample networking opportunities.

Who Should Attend?

The IAMSE Conference is designed for all those who teach and lead curricula in the sciences of medicine and health. Participants include basic scientists and clinical medical faculty, as well as members representing faculty from various other health care disciplines. Also, students are always represented and involved in the program. This international conference typically hosts attendees from over 25 nations around the world.
